

A List of Mayors and Aldermen
of the City of Savannah, Georgia, 1790-2012

ADDENDUM

List of Mayors and Aldermen
of the City of Savannah, Georgia, 1790 - 1901

This addendum lists mayors and aldermen from the first municipal election, held in 1790, through the administration of 1899-1901. The lists have been taken directly from A History of the City Government of Savannah, Ga., from 1790 to 1901, a very useful book, unfortunately long out of print, which was compiled from the City Council Minutes by Thomas Gamble, Jr., and published by City Council in 1900. This information has been recompiled into the format of the foregoing 1901-1978 list with a minimum of checking, though a few dates for special elections were verified or corrected from the Council Minutes, and some dates for the deaths of aldermen were obtained from the death records at the Chatham County Health Department.

On page 45 of his History, Gamble describes the government of Savannah between the end of the Revolutionary War and its incorporation as a municipality as follows:

In 1787 Savannah was placed under the authority of seven wardens elected by the proprietors of lots or houses, one warden for each ward, and they elected from their own number a president of the board. William Stephens was the first president. He was succeeded by Samuel Stirk, who held the office for two years, 1788 and 1789.

The City of Savannah was incorporated by act of the State Legislature late in 1789. The first municipal election was held on the first Monday in March, 1790, to elect seven aldermen for a term of one year. The date of the election was changed many times by the Legislature in the ensuing years. In 1797 it was changed from the first Monday in March to the first Monday in July; in 1807 to the first Monday in September; in 1843 to the first Monday in December; in 1857 to October. In 1865 the annual election was held in December by order of the Georgia Convention, but the following year it reverted to October. Due to the difficulties of Reconstruction, no new election was held from 1866 until 1869, the same mayor and Council continuing in office for three years. In 1871 the term in office was lengthened to two years, and in 1872 the election date was changed to the third Tuesday in January, where it remained until 1900, although the 1897 election was not held until February 1.

The number of aldermen also varied. From 1790 to 1807, one alderman was elected by each ward of the city, so that the number of aldermen grew with the number of wards. From 1807 onwards, all aldermen were elected on the same ticket, and the number was limited to fourteen. The mayor was chosen by the aldermen themselves at their first meeting, normally held one week after the election. Thus the mayor was also an alderman, and could remain an alderman even if resigning as mayor. There were seven aldermen, including the mayor, from 1790 to 1795, ten from 1795 to 1803, twelve from 1803 to 1807, thirteen from 1807 to 1809, and fourteen from 1809 to 1844. In December of 1843 an act of the State Legislature changed these practices, reducing the number of aldermen to twelve and ruling that the mayor was to be elected directly by the people, not as one of the board of aldermen. From the election of 1844 onwards, this act was in effect, although on two occasions, in 1857 when the elected mayor died, and again in 1861 when no mayoral candidate received a majority of the vote, a mayor was chosen by Council.

The organization of this list is the same as that of the 1901-1978 list, a chronological list by administration followed by an alphabetical index by surname. There is some overlap between this list and the foregoing one around the year 1900; some individuals appear in both lists, so for complete information on a member of Council during that period both indexes should be checked. Though it appears from the Council Minutes that there were council officers besides the mayor, Gamble does not name them, and so their names are not included here. Except for a few dates, as already mentioned, obtained from the Council Minutes and from the death records at the Chatham County Health Department, this list is simply a recompilation of information from Gamble's History, including only that information which Gamble provides.

A List of Mayors and Aldermen
of the City of Savannah, Georgia, 1901 - 1978

This is a list of members of Savannah City Council, mayors and aldermen, from the election held in 1901 through the election of 1978. It is a continuation of the lists of mayors and aldermen for the years 1790-1901 compiled by Thomas Gamble, Jr., in his book, A History of the City Government of Savannah, Ga., from 1790 to 1901, which was published by the City Council in 1900. The information in this list was taken from the Official Minutes of the City Council, and verified in the mayor's Municipal Reports for the years 1901-1917, and in the Savannah City Directories for the years 1901-1980. Some additional information was obtained from the "Savannah - Biography" vertical files at the Savannah Public Library.

The time and manner of election of council members has changed over the years, as has the number of aldermen elected, the length of their terms of service, and the council offices they may hold. Until 1956, elections were held in January in odd-numbered years, with those elected being inaugurated the same month. In 1956 an election was held in August, with the inauguration in January 1957. From 1957 to the present, elections have been in August, inaugurations in October, in even-numbered years. Except for one experiment with four-year terms from 1915 to 1923, a council member's term in office lasted two years, until, in 1958, the four-year term was re-instituted.

The council consisted of a mayor and twelve aldermen until 1955, when the number of aldermen was reduced to six. In 1978, the number was changed again, to eight. All aldermen were elected at large until, in 1978, a district system was introduced, one alderman being elected from each of six districts, with two aldermen being elected at large. Whenever a vacancy occurred, through resignation or death of a mayor or alderman, a replacement would be elected by the council. Council also elected its own officers. These officers were a chairman and a vice-chairman of council, with a Mayor Pro Tempore added in 1943 and a Mayor Designate added in 1951. In 1955 all offices except that of Mayor Pro Tempore were abolished. The position of chairman of council was re-established in 1958 and that of vice-chairman in 1966; these three offices are the ones in existence at present.

This list is organized in two parts. The first part is a chronological list by administration, identifying council officers and giving the name of each councilman as it appears in the Official Minutes of City Council. The second part is an alphabetical index by surname, giving the dates each person served and the offices he held. The index also includes, when available, the individual's full given name and years of birth and death, this information having been obtained from newspaper clippings in the vertical files of the Savannah Public Library.
