Sergeant George K. Gannam

How young! how fair!
Through honest eyes
He meets our own
With no surprise—
Our first sweet human sacrifice
To pagan greed.

He met our need;
His life he gave
To foreign grave;
And in his blood spilled
For our land,
His destiny fulfilled.

Staff Sergeant George K. Gannam, 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Karam Gannam of Fifty-third and Hopkins streets, was killed in action in the defense of Hickam Field, near Honolulu, Hawaii, it was announced yesterday by the army, becoming Savannah's first fatality in the present conflict.

Sergt. Gannam's parents, who operate a store at Fifty-third and Hopkins streets, were notified of their son's death yesterday afternoon. The news, received from Fort McPherson, stated that he had been "killed in action." He was attached to head quarters squadron of the Eighteenth Pursuit Group, stationed at Wheeler Field, Honolulu, several miles from Hickam Field.

A graduate of Benedictine Military School, where he made an excellent record in military, Sergt. Gannam enlisted in the army in August, 1939. Besides both parents, he is survived by two brothers, Michael Gannam and Anthony Gannam, and one sister, Mrs. Mary Saraf, all of Savannah; and another brother, Nazer Gannam, who is in the United States navy stationed at Norfolk, Va.

He will be buried in Hawaii until after the war, it was announced by the army.

Information was received yesterday by Mrs. W. L. Byrd, 122 East Thirty-sixth street, that her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Caldwell, who have resided in the Hawaiian Islands for the past thirty-two years, are safe. Mrs. Byrd stated that the message reached her indirectly through a telephonic message between Mr. Caldwell and a business associate in San Francisco. She said that a telegram from her son-in-law's friend in San Francisco informed her of their safety.

Word was received last night from Lieut. Harry Grimshaw Moore, stationed aboard the destroyer Patterson based at Hawaii, of that Savannah officer's safety. A cablegram was sent by Lieut. Moore to his brother, Beverly H. Moore of 217 East Huntingdon street.

Two Savannah boys are stationed at an army post near Honolulu. They are C. M. O'Connor, Jr., son of City Policeman C. M. O'Connor, and Earl J. Brixhoff.

Through a cablegram sent by H. C. Herr, Jr., stationed at a naval air station in Hawaii, information was received to the effect that he is safe. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Herr of 210 West Gwinnett street.

HERO HAD QUALIFIED AS AVIATION CADET

SERGT. GANNAM'S MOTHER RECEIVES LETTER FROM HAWAII

Notice from the office of the chief of the U. S. Army Air Corps that Sergt. George K. Gannam, Savannah's first casualty in World War No. 2, had been chosen for appointment as an army aviation cadet, has been forwarded to the mother of Sergt. Gannam, Mrs. Annie K. Gannam, from the air corps force at Wheeler Field Hawaii.

Sergt. Gannam, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Karem Gannam and a graduate of Benedictine Military College, was killed in action the day the Japanese attacked Hawaii, December 7.

The notice from the chief of the air corps was forwarded Mrs. Gannam by First Lieut. Dean E. Mansfield, who sent the following letter, praising the service of Sergt. Gannam, with the official notice:

"You may have for your safekeeping the inclosed letter from the Chief of the Air Corps, placing your son on the eligible list for appointment as an Aviation Cadet. Staff Sergeant Gannam was one of our finest soldiers and radio operators, well-liked by all, and it is further example of the fine potentialities George had as an American soldier, that he so successfully qualified himself to become an Aviation Cadet.

"That his budding career was so prematurely ended is a great sorrow. But we look forward to the future knowing that he died for our country, and knowing too, that he would want us to look forward."

The official notice was signed by Capt. J. W. Durant of the Air Corps on behalf of the chief of the air corps. It stated that Sergt. Gannam, an enlisted man, had been found qualified for appointment as an army aviation cadet and his name had been put on the eligible list for assignment.

Also accompanying the letter was the notification from the Hawaiian base to the air corps office in Washington that Sergt. Gannam had been killed in action.

MASS HELD HERE FOR SGT. GANNAM

Officials Present at Rites For War Casualty

"Greater love than this no man hath, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

With these words from St. John, the Very Rev. Boniface Bauer, O. S. B., yesterday paid tribute to Savannah's first war casualty, 22-year-old Staff Sergt. George Gannam, who died this week on a battlefield in Hawaii.

Prominent city officials and other Savannahians attended the requiem mass at Sacred Heart Church, and together with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Karam Gannam, relatives and friends, heard an impressive and touching ceremony.

Cadets from Benedictine Military School, from which young Gannam graduated in 1938, marched in solemn procession from their armory to the church to attend the mass.

At the conclusion of the mass, Taps softly echoed through the edifice. George G. Doerner, a member of the B. C. band and a senior at the school, sounded the plaintive notes from high in the church behind the organ.

The celebrant of the mass asked the assembly to pray that God, the Ruler of the Universe, "may soften the hearts of the men who rule over the destiny of nations, and that He may bring back to the world peace, that precious peace which the world cannot give, which God alone can give."

Those who assisted the Very Rev. Boniface Bauer were the Rt. Rev. Msgr. T. James McNamara, rector of the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist; the Very Rev. James Grady, chancellor of the diocese; the Rev. Thomas Sheehan, pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes; the Rev. James Croke, of the Blessed Sacrament Church, and the following members of the school faculty, the Rev. Gregory Eichenlaub, O. S. B.; the Rev. Robert Brennan, O. S. B.; the Rev. Norbert McGowan, O. S. B.; the Rev. Paul Milde, O. S. B.; the Rev. Peter Trizzino, O. S. B., and the Rev. Brendan Dooley, O. S. B.

Headed by Mayor Thomas Gamble, the city officials at the mass included Aldermen Peter R. Nugent, Charles H. Schafer, Daniel W. Brantley, C. F. Holton, B. I. Friedman, J. R. Burney, Louis J. Roos, Charles Wilkins, and Joseph F. Griffin; Lewis A. East, superintendent water department; Robert F. Downing, city marshal; Mrs. Irene S. Grogan, secretary to the Mayor and assistant clerk of city council; P. J. McNamara, clerk of council; W. G. Logan, supervisor of purchases; Chief William M. Hall, police department; Chief Walter S. Blanton, fire department; A. S. Goebel, city engineer; Dr. Charles C. Hedges, health officer, and T. T. Canty, harbor master.

Members of the Benedictine Military School Auxiliary attended in a body.

A catafalque was placed before the altar, this being used in the service in the absence of the body of Sergt. Gannam, which is being temporarily buried in Hawaii.

The parents of Mr. Gannam have received a message of sympathy from Congressman Hugh Peterson in Washington. The congressman said: "It appears that your son George has made the supreme sacrifice in the defense of our nation and I deeply sympathize with you and each member of your family in your great bereavement."

The congressman said: "It appears that your son George has made the supreme sacrifice in the defense of our nation and I deeply sympathize with you and each member of your family in your great bereavement."

Father Boniface in his sermon said: "Greater love than this no man hath, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

"Last Sunday afternoon the news was flashed around the world, that the United States possessions at Hawaii had been attacked treacherously by the enemy and that many lives had been lost. Those of us who had relatives, friends and acquaintances stationed at the army posts there hoped and prayed that they had not fallen victims to the attack. Several days had passed without news reaching us of the death of any of them and we breathed a sigh of relief, feeling in our hearts that everything was well with them, that they had survived the ordeal.

"Day before yesterday, we received the shocking news that our young and beloved friend, George Gannam, had fallen a victim to the enemy's attack. The War Department sent the terse message to the young man's family, 'Regret to announce that your son, George, was killed in action at Hickam Field, Hawaii, December 7th.' This news struck like a bombshell in the peace and quiet of our community. We heard of the first casualty of the war. For the first time we realized that war had been brought home close to us. It had taken from our midst one whom we had loved and respected.

Let us pray also that God, the Ruler of the Universe, may soften the hearts of the men who rule over the destiny of nations, and that He may bring back to the world peace, that precious Peace which the world cannot give, which God alone can give."

Tribute Paid War's First Casualty at Requiem Mass

A requiem mass, conducted at Sacred Heart Catholic Church today for Staff Sergt. George Gannam, Savannah's first casualty in the war with Japan, was attended by the Mayor and aldermen, city officials, the cadets of Benedictine Military School, of which Sergt. Gannam was an alumnus, relatives and a host of friends. The services were conducted by the Very Rev. Boniface Bauer, O. S. B., who delivered a beautiful tribute to the heroism of the young soldier, who was but 22 years old. Taps were sounded by George G. Doerner, a Benedictine cadet.

SAVANNAH MOURNS DEATH OF GANNAM

MANY ATTEND REQUIEM MASS FOR FIRST WAR DEAD

Savannah today paid tribute to its first war casualty as prominent city officials joined with sorrowing parents, relatives and friends at a requiem mass for Staff Sergeant George Gannam at the Sacred Heart Church. He died this week on a battlefield in Hawaii, being among the first killed as the United States launched its struggle against the Axis partners, Japan, Germany and Italy.

As the mass was held the pelt of raindrops from a leaden sky was reminiscent to those there that the world sorrowed too at the death of the youth who was but 22 years of age.

The soft fall of the rain mingled with the tramp of slowly marching feet as the R. O. T. C. units of the Benedictine Military School from which he graduated in 1938 formed their lines and marched in solemn procession from their armory to the church.

Into the church marched the sorrowing cadets in two long lines. The gray of their uniforms blended into the solemnity of the occasion as the boys paid their tribute to a comrade who was known to many of them. They entered the church in three companies each with his commanding officer leading. At the close of the service the cadets led the way followed by the family and consoling relatives and friends.

The celebrant of the mass was the Very Rev. Boniface Bauer, O. S. B., who consoled the family with the words of St. John: "Greater love than this no man hath, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Assisting at the mass were the Rt. Rev. Msgr. T. James McNamara, rector of the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist; the Very Rev. James Grady, chancellor of the diocese; the Rev. Thomas Sheehan, pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes; the Rev. James Croke, of the Blessed Sacrament Church, and the following members of the school faculty, the Rev. Gregory Eichenlaub, O. S. B.; the Rev. Robert Brennan, O. S. B.; the Rev. Norbert McGowan, O. S. B.; the Rev. Paul Milde, O. S. B.; the Rev. Peter Trizzino, O. S. B., and the Rev. Brendan Dooley, O. S. B.

At the conclusion of the service the notes of a bugle sounded from high in the church behind the organ. Softly Taps echoed through the edifice. George G. Doerner, a member of the band and a senior at Benedictine School, was the bugler.

City officials at the requiem Mass were headed by Mayor Gamble and included:

had loved and respected.
"Only two and a half years ago George Gannam had graduated from Benedictine School. During the four years of attendance at our school he had distinguished himself by his devotion to duty, by his diligent application to his studies, by his soldierly conduct at all times and by his unassuming and affable manner. He was a boy who had endeared himself to everyone who had come in contact with him.

"As a member of the Cadet Corps, his military record was an excellent one, so much so that he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant. He graduated from the school with honors.

"Only two months after his graduation he volunteered to the United States Air Corps where his record was no less distinguished than the one he had attained at Benedictine School. He quickly rose to the rank of staff sergeant, a rank he held until he died in the line of duty.

"Knowing him as we did, we can imagine him to have maintained the same sense of duty when he went up to engage the enemy in battle, as had been his wont in the Benedictine Cadet Corps. He died the death of a true soldier and we know that he did not flinch from the danger even when the odds were against him, as we may assume that they were. The school is honored in having tutored a boy of the type of George Gannam. He sealed his patriotism with his life's blood. 'Greater love than this no man hath, that a man lay down his life for his friends.'

"To the members of the Benedictine Cadet Corps, George Gannam should serve as an ideal. In him you see exemplified every virtue which should characterize a Benedictine Cadet. Not so many years ago, he had gone through the same course of training through which you are passing now. He met with and overcame every difficulty which you meet in your daily student life. He was studious and conscientious in his class work; obedient and respectful to his superiors; kind and considerate towards those over whom he had been placed in command, and congenial with everyone with whom he had come in contact. Keep this ideal ever before you and you in turn will earn the respect and love of your fellowmen, no matter what walk of life you may choose.

"On this sad occasion our hearts naturally turn in sympathy to the parents upon whom God had placed the heavy burden of sorrow. They had made many and great sacrifices in giving their boy an education and in raising him as a useful citizen of his country. Now he has been taken from us while still in the vigor of youth. He had given every promise of a useful and successful life, but God in His unsearchable way had chosen him to become a martyr of duty. Be comforted with the thought that, though his life was short in years, it was filled with deeds well done. While his body lies buried in a distant land, his spirit, his soul still lives on in a world where, through the mercy of God, you will some day meet him again. He was a boy with a deep sense of religion; as faithful in serving God, his Creator, as he had been faithful in the discharge of his duties towards his fel-band and a senior at Benedictine School, was the bugler.

City officials at the requiem Mass were headed by Mayor Gamble and included:

Aldermen Peter R. Nugent, Charles H. Schafer, Daniel W. Brantley, C. F. Holton, B. I. Friedman, J. R. Bur-

Gannam Among First Casualties In Jap Attack On Hickam Field

Savannah, Ga.—Staff Sergeant George K. Gannam, 22 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Karam Gannam of this city, was killed in action on December 7, while defending Hickam Field, near Honolulu, against the Japanese attacks.

The shocking news of their son's death burst upon Mr. and Mrs. Gannam on December 10, in a terse message from the War Department, saying, "We regret to announce that your son George was killed in action at Hickam Field, Hawaii, December 7th." Sergeant Gannam was attached to headquarters squadron of the Eighteenth Pursuit Group at Wheeler Field, a few miles from Hickam Field, and was among the first Americans in this war to give their lives for their country. He had enlisted in the army in August, 1939, only two months after his graduation from Benedictine Military Academy.

Requiem Mass

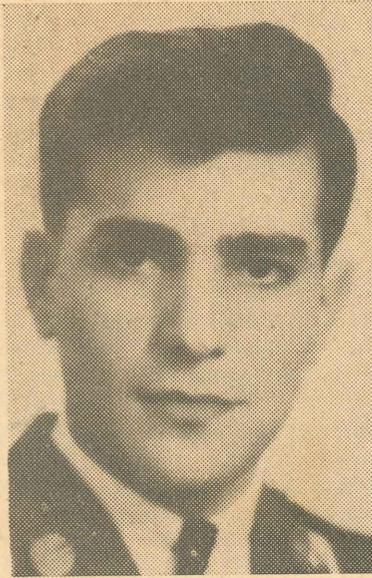

At the requiem mass held for Sergeant Gannam at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church December 12, the city of Savannah joined his sorrowful family in mourning his death. He is the first fatality from this city. In addition to the many relatives and friends of the family, a large group of prominent city officials, headed by Mayor Gamble, and faculty members and cadet units of the Benedictine Military Academy, from which Sergeant Gannam graduated in 1939, attended the services. The cadets, many of whom had known the war hero, had marched in solemn procession from their armory and had entered the church in three companies, each with its commander leading.

The celebrant of the mass was the Very Rev. Boniface Bauer, O.S.B., of the Benedictine school, with the assistance of a number of clergymen. Father Boniface consoled the family with the words of St. John: "No greater love than this no man hath, that a man may lay down his life for a friend." A catafalque stood before the altar in the absence of the body, which will remain in Hawaii until the end of the war.

School Proud of Gannam

In his sermon, Father Boniface said that during Sergeant Gannam's four years at the Benedictine Academy, "he had distinguished himself by his devotion

Dear Mr. Barakat:

We acknowledge with grateful appreciation your comforting words in our hour of grief. But for the words of friends, it would have been much harder to bear.

Though his death was such a shock to everyone who knew him, we at home are proud of him for the way he chose.

Respectfully yours,

A. K. GANNAM.

George Gannam, a Benedictine graduate who died at Pearl Harbor, surrounded by smaller photographs of dedication ceremonies, has been placed on the wall of the entrance hall at Benedictine Military School, the Rev. Gregory Eichenlaub, O. S. B., principal, said last night.

Next to the montage is a roll of honor to include the names of all Benedictine students who give their lives in this war, which has been placed directly across from the roll of honor of the last war.

Orders were issued yesterday at a student assembly requiring all cadets to salute as they pass through the hall, Father Gregory said. Included in the memorial display is the American flag and the standard of the cadet corps.

TRIBUTE TO DEAD BOYS

Touching Scenes as Their Bodies Are Laid to Rest

BY EUGENE BURNS

HONOLULU, Dec. 16 (AP)—
Day after day, just before sunset, with simple dignity befitting the gallantry with which they died for their country, America's finest have been buried at Honolulu.

They have been laid to rest on green hills overlooking the sea—
there to remain until a peaceful time when the bodies might be returned to their native soil.

MARINES RAISE RIFLES

This has been going on since Monday, Dec. 8, the day after Japanese bombings brought death to 91 officers and 2638 enlisted men of the navy and 168 of the army.

A tight-lipped group of six-foot marines in olive-drab uniforms raise their rifles and fire three volleys over the fresh earth as nightfall approaches fast. A bugle sounds taps.

A black-robed priest blesses the ground with holy water and a Protestant chaplain recites the committal ceremony—then the living move back to their war jobs amid the blackout.

"Don't say we buried with sorrow,"
said the graying chaplain of the fleet, Captain William A. Maguire. "Say we buried with conviction. Our men died manfully and we will wipe out that treachery, come what may. The spirit of these men lives on. I can feel it."

Mark Each Grave

"Each grave is marked and each body carefully identified for shipment back to the mainland after the war is fought and won—back to home towns."

Honolulu's gardens have been stripped of flaming poinsettias—Christmas flowers—golden asters and many-hued hibiscus flowers—each grave has a small bouquet—Honolulu's tribute.

The first bodies were taken to Nuuanu Cemetery overlooking the palm-fringed sea from which the treacherous attack was launched.

When all the space there was taken trenches were dug atop Red Hill, overlooking Pearl Harbor.

Glorious in Death

"I was in the thickest of the attack,"
said Chaplain Maguire. "Our 130,000,000 Americans would glow if they could have seen how our boys died. It was glorious. Nay a whimper! They manned their guns until the decks buckled with the heat."

The chaplain wiped his blue eyes.
"Ah, how game," he said. "At the Marine barracks where the wounded lay that Sunday, if a worse wounded man was brought in, a man with a leg
missing or an arm missing would say,
'For God's sake I'm all right, put him on the table. Take me out of here.'"

"And while all this heroism was going on those Japs still were machine-gunning—do you get the picture I'm telling you lad? Badly burned men without clothes carrying blankets begged me, 'I want to get back to my ship. I want to get back to my gun.'"

"Ah, lad, if every American had seen how quietly, yes quietly, men suffered,
how gallantly they died, how courageously they died, now courageously they thought about the next man they would glory. They would swear our front line will never give."

FIRST LEAVE IN 2 YEARS

He Has Been at Schofield
Barracks, Hawaii

First Lieut. Fred H. McKinstry, of the antiaircraft branch of the army, is in Savannah on furlough after being stationed at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, from August 1, 1941, until October of this year.

The young army officer is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. William B.
McKinstry, of 509 East Forty-first street. When he was 13 he left Savannah with his parents for Chicago, his father being comptroller of the Illinois Central System, promoted from the comptroller office of the Central of Georgia.

Lieutenant McKinstry is enjoying his first leave in two years. Naturally his location in Hawaii, especially since December 7, 1941, has been in a vital and interesting area. He has now been assigned to Fort Eustis, Va., and will report there after his furlough ends and he completes his visit to his parents here.

Army regulations prevent Lieutenant McKinstry from talking much of the situation in Hawaii, save to admit that at present it is good. Of singular interest is the information that the Orientals living on the islands have proportionately been markedly liberal purchasers of U. S.
savings bonds, this being true not only of the Chinese people living there

The school is honored in having tutored a boy of the type of George Gannam. He sealed his patriotism with his life's blood."

Condolences From Federation President

Among the many messages of sympathy received by Mr. and Mrs. Gannam, who are in business in Savannah, was one from Mr. George M. Barakat, president of the Eastern Federation. He assured them that "We Americans of Syrian and Lebanese ancestry shall always treasure the memory of that gallant soldier, Staff Sergeant George K. Gannam, who was the first to sacrifice his life in order that we might continue to enjoy the blessings of freedom and liberty." Another message of sympathy came from Congressman Hugh Peterson in Washington, who said in part: "Your son George has made the supreme sacrifice in the defense of our nation."

Brother In Navy

Besides both parents, Sergeant Gannam is survived by two brothers, Michael and Anthony, and one sister, Mrs. Mary Saraf, all of Savannah; and another brother, Nazer, who is serving in the United States Navy, stationed at Norfolk, Va.

tend the Exercises

The flag that Sergt. George Gannam, Savannah's first casualty in the war at Hickam Field, Honolulu, flew on a pole of a boy's club in Savannah, is going to be raised again Sunday at noon on a new pole at Fifty-third and Hopkins streets, next to his home.

There was a neighborhood club of boys near where George Gannam lived. He made the flagpole and the boys raised the flag on it. They insisted on the flag being above their club rooms.

Karam Gannam, his father, is giving the new flagpole. A detail of Benedictine cadets will be present at the flag raising. The senior class of that school will also have buglers attend. The Mothers' Club of Benedictine School will lay a wreath at the foot of the flagpole.

Rev. Father Gregory Eichenlaub, O. S. B., principal of Benedictine, and Col. Fred Von Kamp, cadet colonel of the Benedictine battalion, will take part in the ceremony.

The new flagpole is surrounded by a fence. The flag will fly there from day to day and people of the neighborhood, as well as others who pass by, will remember Sergeant George Gannam who fell at Hickam Field on December 7, the fateful beginning of the United States' entrance into the world war. Sergeant Gannam was the first Savannahian in this war to fall in action in defense of an American area.

Sergeant Gannam was a graduate of Benedictine School. He enlisted in the army in August, 1939. At the time of his death he was attached to headquarters group of the Eighteenth Pursuit Group, stationed at Wheeler Field, several miles from Hickam Field.

SGT. GANNAM'S FLAG TO BE RAISED TODAY

Exercises at 53rd and Hopkins Streets at Noon

At noon today a flag which belonged to Sergeant George Gannam when he was a member of a boys' club in Savannah will be raised on a new flag pole at Fifty-third and Hopkins streets.

Sergeant Gannam, Savannah's first war casualty, made the original flag pole when he was a member of the boy's club. His father, Karam Gannam, is giving the new pole.

Buglers from the senior class of Benedictine and a detail of the school's cadets will attend the flag raising. Sergeant Gannam was a graduate of Benedictine.

The Mothers' Club of Benedictine School and the Catholic Young People's Association will place wreaths at the foot of the flag pole which is enclosed by a fence.

Among those taking part in the ceremony will be the Rev. Father Gregory Eichenlaub, O. S. B., principal of Benedictine; Col. Fred Von Kamp, cadet colonel of the Benedictine Battalion; Capt. A. M. Gignilliat, assistant P. M. S. and T., R. O. T. C. will attend.

Sergeant Gannam died at Hickam Field, Honolulu, December 7, 1941.

"The Register," Catholic newspaper of Denver, Col., in the issue of today, has the following story of Sergt. Gannam:

"The heroic death of another Catholic lad in the raid is related in the Catholic Herald, Honolulu paper. George Gannam, a fine member of the Holy Name Society, received communion from Father Slney at the 6:30 Mass. Badly wounded in the bombing, he was taken to the army hospital. Father John K. Connelly, a chaplain from the Sacramento diocese, was passing up and down the wards, giving the Last Sacraments to the more seriously wounded. George called to him, but the priest, seeing the boy's face unhurt, asked him to wait. Finally he heard the soldier's confession and gave him Extreme Unction and Viaticum.

"How are you feeling?" he asked.

"Not bad, Father," came the answer with a smile.

"The priest lifted the blanket and saw that almost all the lower part of his body had been shot away. Before he died he made sure that Father Connelly would send his watch and money to his mother."

FLAG HE FLEW TO BE RAISED AGAIN

Will Be Tribute to Late Sergeant Gannam.

The flag that Sergt. George Gannam, first Savannahian killed in action in the war, flew on a pole at a neighborhood boys' club, will be raised again tomorrow at noon with elaborate ceremonies. A new pole has been provided at Fifty-third and Hopkins street, next to his home.

His father, Karam Gannam, has donated the pole. A detail of cadets from Benedictine Military School, from which Sergt. Gannam was graduated, will be present, and the senior class will have buglers attend. The Mothers' Club of Benedictine will lay a wreath at the foot of the pole.

The Rev. Gregory Eichenlaub, O. S. B., principal of the school, and Col. Fred Von Kamp, cadet colonel, will take part in the ceremonies.

The new pole is surrounded by a fence, and the flag will be flown each day, as a memorial to Sergt. Gannam, who fell at Hickam Field, Hawaii, on December 7.

DEDICATION OF FLAGPOLE HELD

HONORS SERGT. GANNAM

Benedictine Cadets Pay Tribute to Alumnus

A flagpole was dedicated to Staff Sergt. George Gannam, U. S. A., first Savannah casualty of the war, at a simple but impressive ceremony yesterday at noon.

The flagpole is located on a lot at Fifty-third and Hopkins streets adjacent to the home of Sergt. Gannam's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Karam Gannam.

Opening the ceremony was the reading of special order No. 5 by Capt. Walter Ehrenreich, acting adjutant of the student battalion of Benedictine Military School, of which Sergt. Gannam was an alumnus. The order was as follows:

"This flagpole is dedicated in honor of George Gannam, a graduate of Benedictine Military School in the class of 1938. Staff Sergt. Gannam, U. S. A., died in the service of his country at Hickam Field, Hawaii, December 7, 1941. We, the present cadets of Benedictine Military School, dedicate ourselves to the cause for which George Gannam died and we pledge our youth and manhood to the establishment of world peace."

It was signed by order of the battalion commander.

Following the reading of the special order, a color detail of B. C. cadets marched to a table where an American flag lay on a silver tray, and received the flag from the father and mother.

The flag was raised on the new flagpole as a B. C. bugler sounded reveille.

The Rev. Father Gregory Eichenlaub, O. S. B., principal of Benedictine, then read a resume of George Gannam's life.

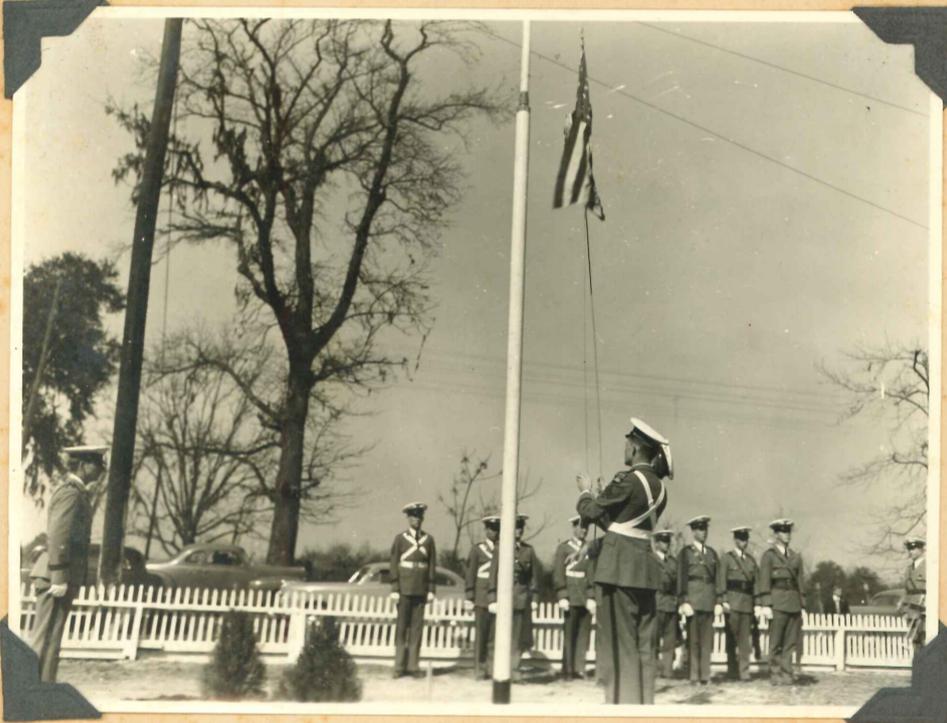

Two wreaths were placed at the base of the pole, one by Lieut. Col. Fred Von Kamp, cadet colonel of Benedictine, on behalf of the Mothers' club of the school, and the other by Miss Kitty McKenzie, president of the Catholic Young People's Association.

Following this the bugler blew taps while the cadets stood at attention. The ceremony was brought to a close with the playing of the national anthem by the Benedictine band.

The flagpole is in a pretty setting, with the ground sodded with grass and the lot enclosed with a fence.

The flag, which was Sergt. Gannam's flag when he was a boy, being raised to the top of the pole by two Benedictine Cadets, of the battalion's color guard. The new pole was given by Karam Gannam, the dead soldier's father.

DEFENSE UNIT AT BENEDICTINE

IS FORMING MONDAY

Be Named For George Gannam and John Lyons

The Benedictine Alumni Association will meet tomorrow night at the armory at 8 o'clock for the purpose of forming Unit 151 of the State Defense Corps of Chatham county. Plans are to name the unit after George Gannam and Jack Lyons, two former Cadets who gave their lives in the service of their country in recent weeks. The name was suggested by Rev. Gregory Eichenlaub, O. S. B., principal of Benedictine.

The officers of the association, of which Richard Russell, Jr., is president, feel that the opportunity is right for former Cadets, in view of their military training, to render a service of special value to the city and its environs.

The organization of the proposed unit has been placed in the hands of Bill Register, a former Benedictine Cadet captain who graduated with the class of 1926.

The unit would be affiliated with the Chatam county defenses under Maj. George Rice and Capt. Joseph Hester, who head this division. Under the conditions of formation the state is to furnish uniforms and other equipment.

Father Gregory last night said, "I am deeply gratified to learn that the Alumni Association is interested in forming this unit. It represents the kind of reaction that is typical of the public spirit Benedictine always tries to inculcate. I feel sure that the required fifty-five can be quickly recruited. I would suggest the Unit 151 be known as the George Gannam-Jack Lyons Unit."

John Lyons died in a plane crash near Pittsburgh, October 9. He was 23 years old and was graduated from Citadel after finishing Benedictine. At Citadel he received several honors including the "Star of the West," which goes annually to the best drilled cadet in the corps. He had been a lieutenant in the United States Air Corps since April of last year.

George Gannam died at Hickam Field in Hawaii on the opening day of the Japanese attack. He was Savannah's first war casualty. His military record at Benedictine was among the best. He enlisted in the army in August, 1939, and had received a sergeantcy.

GANNAM-LYONS UNIT TO MEET

Benedictine Alumni Forming Defense Corps Unit

The Gannam-Lyons Unit of the Georgia Defense Corps will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the armory of the Benedictine Corps of Cadets.

William Register is in command of the unit, which is being formed in large part of graduates of Benedictine Military School. The unit is named for two former Benedictine cadets who died recently in the service of their country.

Capt. Register is hoping that more alumni will show up at tonight's meeting and join the unit. The present strength is much below that desired. There are a number of Benedictine alumni, he believes, who will find they are doing a real service by joining this unit as their part in the defense work. He extends to them an invitation to attend tonight and sign up with the command. Assistance will be given the new unit by some of the smart undergraduate cadets, who are very proficient in military matters.

CAPT. THOMSON TO MEET WITH ALUMNI

BENEDICTINE UNIT OF DE-FENSE CORPS DRILLS
TOMORROW

Capt. E. G. Thomson, commandant of the Benedictine cadets for 17 years prior to the school's attaining a R. O. T. C. status will attend the first drill session of the Gannam-Lyons unit of the Georgia Defense Corps tomorrow night at 7 o'clock at the Benedictine armory.

The unit is named for two former Benedictine cadets who died in recent months for their country. Captain "Eddie" as he is affectionately known, is prevented taking part in the unit and other phases of public welfare work because of his health.

He is very enthusiastic about the organization of the alumni unit for it will be composed almost entirely of young men who attended Benedictine under his tutelage.

When seen this morning he said: "I hope my boys will seize this opportunity of serving with their old cadet buddies in this very important organization, the state defense corps. I should like to see the Benedictine alumni who have entered other phases of defense work for which they have had no previous training relinquish their places in such organizations to others and enter the Gannam-Lyons unit where they can use the military training they have had."

"It is important to my mind that each person serve where he can serve best."

"Although there is a great number of Benedictine alumni already serving with the colors I never-the-less feel that there are still more than enough to oversubscribe this unit."

"I will be looking forward to them tomorrow night giving Bill Register, the commander, their enthusiastic support."

The Rev. Gregory Eichenlaub, O. S. B., principal of the Benedictine Military School said today that he was greatly pleased to learn of Captain Thomson's plan to be with his old boys tomorrow night when the unit begins its first drill period.

Father Gregory declared he will have some of the members of the present corps of cadets available to help the alumni in regaining their one-time military efficiency.

KILLED IN ACTION

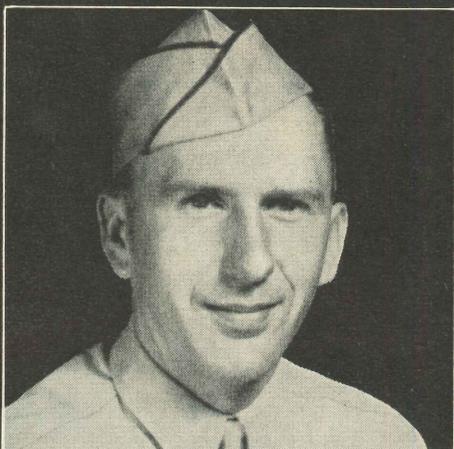

THESE MEN FELL FIRST AT HAWAII

These 30 young Americans (below) from Nebraska to Florida were on the first U. S. Army casualty list of this war. They were killed in action in Japan's surprise bombardment of Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7. They are only a few of the total casualties, now estimated at 3,000, and their names are among the last to appear in a public casualty list for the war's duration.

Speaking for the Army and Navy, President Roosevelt declared

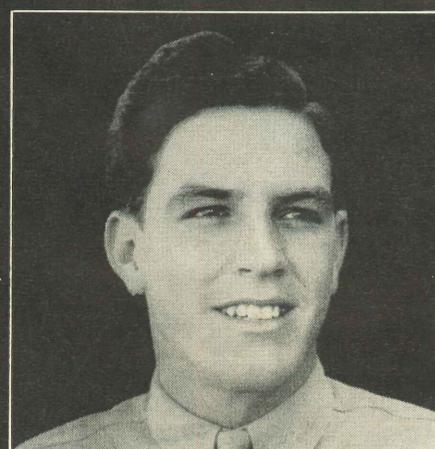

Rear Admiral Isaac Cambell Kidd was in command of battleship division at Pearl Harbor.

last week that hereafter radios and newspapers should refrain from announcing complete lists of dead or wounded, for such lists would give useful information to the enemy. In case of a casualty, the next of kin would be notified at once, however, with instructions not to divulge the name of their relative's ship or station. The President said he thought it would be permissible for newspapers and magazines to print news of individual war deaths if military or geographical information was withheld.

The bravery of Captain Colin Kelly Jr. (right) on Dec. 12 off Luzon in the Philippines provided America with its first war hero. Kelly dove his plane straight at the Japanese battleship, Haruna, released a stick of high explosives almost into the mouths of flaming guns, and then vanished himself in the mighty explosion that ushered the 29,000-ton ship to the bottom of the sea.

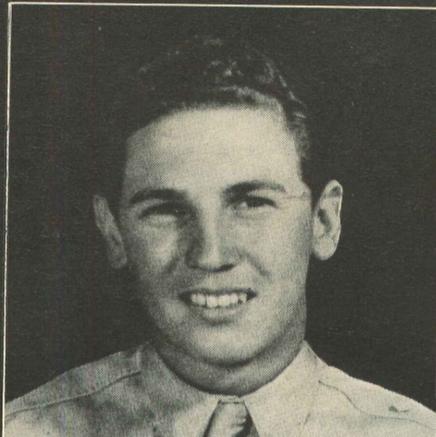

Dec. 22, 1941

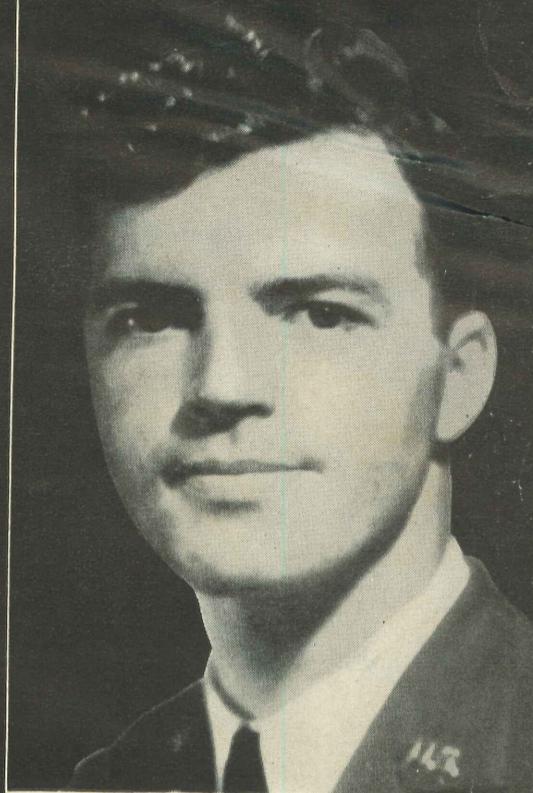

Corporal Malachy J. Cashen, Air Corps, leaves mother, Gertrude Cashen, in Lamont, Iowa.

Lieutenant Hans C. Christiansen, Air Corps, of Woodland, Calif., died at Pearl Harbor.

BENEDICTINE AND THE WAR.

With the death of one of its alumni, the school has had the blunt horror of war thrown viciously into its face. Impersonal newspaper accounts of the treachery of the savages in foreign countries moved us little. It took the death of one of our group to jar us and startle us and to make us realize that America is really at war.

George Gannam died at Pearl Harbor but the memory of George Gannam cannot die so long as there remains a member of the Benedictine Cadet Corps who will often and reverently speak his name.

To us he has thrown the torch of freedom. It is our duty to catch it and raise it high and walk forward with it towards Victory. And in performing military duties here at school, in cooperating with government officials, we catch that torch and begin that march.

As cadets of a military school we are fortunate in times like these to be receiving training of inestimable value. Now more than ever it is necessary to study military science more faithfully and thoroughly and to carry out instructions in a soldierly manner.

If in the past the drill schedule has seemed dull and boring it should now assume a resemblance to reality that will force you to take an active interest in it. The drill field teaches self discipline and in this war control over one's self is a main weapon that the country will need in the times when, and if, rationing becomes very strenuous.

So wake up, Cadets. Take the noble example of George Gannam as a lesson of perfect loyalty and Prepare to Fight!

REMEMBER PEARL HARBOR! REMEMBER GEORGE GANNAM!

SPORTSMANSHIP

"A sportsman", says the dictionary, "is one who in sports is fair and generous, a good loser and a graceful winner." All too often generosity is forgotten when the contest grows heated, not so much by our players, as the spectators. The mob instinct grips them, might makes right, they say, and they try to take matters into their own hands, or mouths should we say.

Such was the case in the Jordan-B. C. conflict. When a Benedictine player stepped into the foul ring a deathlike stillness pervaded the atmosphere, but let an opponent venture thither and anguished shouts arose. When he got ready for his shot the gym sounded like a nest of rattlers, and if he made it,—wow— We don't know if that's the common procedure in Columbus when a "foreigner" shoots, but we ask, "Is this proper? Is this sportsmanlike?"

This state of affairs cannot go on. Benedictine must and will rise above it. If we cannot win a game by fair means, let's not win at all. When our team is in a distant city we expect them to be pleasantly received, just as we receive them in our own gym.

Remember the old adage, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

Both Were Alumni Of Benedictine

In honor of two former cadets of Benedictine who gave their lives in the service of their country, graduates of Benedictine have banded together and formed a unit of the Georgia State Defense Corps. Named for George Gannam, killed in action at Pearl Harbor, and John R. Lyons, an officer of the Air Corps, who crashed to his death in Pennsylvania. The unit is under the command of Capt. Bill Register. Meetings of the groups are held regularly in the Benedictine Armory.

Membership is limited entirely to graduates of Benedictine Military School, but the unit has the official sanction of the State Defense Corps.

Although still familiar with the basic fundamentals of military life, some of the older graduates have lost the command they once held over military science. To aid the members of the unit in becoming acquainted with the "new drill," Lt. Col. Von Kamp has volunteered the services of the officers of the battalion. Capt. Ray, Lt. Clifton and Lt. Ryan have assisted in the instruction.

The cadet corps of Benedictine Military School attended the military mass in uniform. The unit assembled in LaFayette Square at 8:45 A. M. and then marched into the church for the celebration at nine o'clock.

The school choir of the Cathedral Grammar School sang the mass. Friends and relatives of the missing attended in large numbers.

and that in 1905 George's mother and father came over to America and settled in Savannah. In 1920 a child was born, and he was named George. It was then told how his father had that very day erected a flagpole in honor of George, and how his fellow cadets, the students of the Benedictine Military School, had assisted in the dedication. It was impossible, the narrator said, to realize the abundance of pride held by the parents of this great boy. He lived zealously and piously, and in order to do something great for the country he loved so dearly, he applied for a position and was readily accepted in the army, given the distinction of staff sergeant.

Cadets Hear Fr. Hubbard's Timely Talk

"Our Arctic Fortress" Is His Subject

Speaking on "Alaska, Our Arctic Fortress", Father Bernard Hubbard, S. J., delivered a timely and interesting lecture to an amazed audience at the Municipal Auditorium on Monday February 9. Most of Benedictine's Cadets attended.

Father Hubbard was introduced by Mayor Gamble who had been presented by Monsignor T. J. MacNamara, an alumnus of Benedictine.

Mayor Gamble spoke of Father Hubbard's geological discoveries and vast explorations as a continuation of the marvelous work begun by the Jesuit priests in America over four hundred years ago.

The priest modestly thanked "one of the country's most literary mayors," and with his droll humor immediately won over his audience. He held their undivided attention during the entire two and a half hours program.

He spoke quickly, audibly—in a manner that makes him one of America's foremost orators.

Father Gregory has given the staff of the Campus Quill the room next to the military supplies room on the second floor of the Armory as an office where the paper may be prepared and where meetings may be held.

Sgt. DeMotte has given a desk from the Commandant's Office. The room, once used as a store room, has assumed an air of bustling activity and the members of the staff are usually found after school hours busily preparing the next edition of the Campus Quill.

Cagers of '42 Win Prep Crown For First Time

Angelus Outstanding With 18 Points

The basketeers at Benedictine have won a coveted distinction in this year of 1942. They have been led by Coach Leonard through a highly successful basketball season climaxing with the capture of the City Title, a prize never before won by a maroon and white team.

The cadets won the crown when they defeated Savannah High School in the Hi gym, 29 to 21.

Benedictine lost its first game to the Blue Jackets in the High School gym, but tied the annual series by winning the second game in the Armory on February 3.

This, too, was a bit of history-making, for it marked the first time that B. C. had defeated S. H. S. in the Armory. The "Armory jinx" often referred to has been broken by this precedent breaking team of '42.

In the third game of the series, B. C. won as the dopesters predicted by a neat margin.

Columbia Broadcasting System Tells Story of George Gannam

Listeners were entranced Sunday night, February 22, when the Columbia Broadcasting System presented, through its dramatic program, "They Live Forever", the inspiring life of the late George Gannam, killed in action at Pearl Harbor. The program was produced in a unique, dramatic fashion, and it showed that the life of George Gannam was indeed the life that every true American should lead.

Several voices were used in the production. The first, low and emotional, captured the attention of listeners from the very beginning with an address that made people stop to find out what was going on. Then another voice read the list of Pearl Harbor casualties headed by the name of George Gannam. After the reading of the casualties, still another voice entered and told briefly but completely the life of George Gannam, how as a boy he insisted on raising and lowering the flag over a neighborhood club, made up of himself and several of his mates. The narrator explained that the name Gannam was Syrian

Catholic Heroes

Sidelights on the start of the war in the Islands are still as interesting to the general public as the day they happened. This war is such a personal thing to each of us. We are always anxious to read of the heroic deeds of the boys participating—as long as they are true and faithfully narrated. Each American soldier, sailor or marine engaged was one of ours—a buddy, and as close as though he were a member of our own family. We sorrow in his pain and anguish; we rejoice in his deeds of strength and valor.

A visit to several encampments the other day brought out the following . . .

One fine Catholic soldier who endeared himself not only to the boys of his regiment but to many civilians as well—especially to those at the Columbus Welfare Building—had just attended the 6:30 Mass at Hickam Field with several hundred other boys on the morning of December 7th. He had received Holy Communion at the Mass, and without breakfast, was preparing the altar for the 8:30 Mass when three bombs in succession struck the building. In five minutes time the structure was leveled to the ground. And this grand Knight of the Altar who stood his ground with the Lord in His own house was found afterwards by Father Ed Sliney, the post Chaplain, lying right in front of the spot where the altar had been . . . his thanksgiving after Holy Communion at an altar here below . . . interrupted . . . is being continued alongside the throne within the Great White Gates where belief in things unseen gives way to vision . . . dear good Joe Nelles has gone to God in Heaven.

Another young soldier from Hickam Field, Joe Silva, who may be cited for bravery under fire, saw three gasoline trucks in the midst of falling bombs. Without considering his own safety, he and two other soldiers rushed to the trucks, despite the fact that many planes were still overhead releasing their bombs, grabbed the controls and got the loaded gas tanks to safety before a bomb could strike them and ignite the whole of the flying field. Then amid plenty of machine gun bullet strafing, he kept the hospital supplied with water from the swimming pool after the mains had broken. Joe smiled in relating it and thought it nothing.

* * *

At a second post, the chaplain Father John Connelly was just starting Mass with 400 boys in attendance. As he recited the "Introibo ad altare Dei" the first bombing started although none realized that it was war and all remained in their pews. At the Gospel the explosions increased.

While composing his sermon the night before, the chaplain had prepared his boys, unconsciously but prophetically, for this very day's war. As the theme of his sermon, Father Connelly had chosen these words: "The Right Way to Die." He related a war story . . . a true one of the last world war . . . a regiment of dough-boys being sent into a sector that was being heavily shelled. They were seasoned troops. They knew what was ahead. As they went to battle they passed a wayside shrine so frequently found in France. It was the Pieta—the statue of the Blessed Virgin with the dead Christ just taken down from the cross in her arms. Every dough-boy saw it as he passed to take his battle position. Each whispered a prayer for success and safety in the encounter. The boys went in and held their sector. Not all came out. But those who did, made their way back through the shell-holes over the same road.

They came to the Pieta. It was still standing, thank God! They looked closer. In the arms of Mary they saw, not the body of Jesus—that had been blown away by the shells—but resting there in almost the exact position as the body of Christ, was one of their own buddies, a young American soldier, killed in action, and by some strange accident, blown into the arms of the Mother of God. "That's the right way to end—right in the arms of the Blessed Mother," said the other dough-boys.

"That's the way to end," repeated the chaplain as he finished his sermon to the boys of Fort Shafter in the new world war that morning of the 7th without knowing that the war had started.

Attending Mass at this chapel were Lt. Col. Griffin, Captain Diestal, Lt. Carnahan and his wife, Lt. Keogh and other officers . . . none believing that any nation would attack another nation without warning. Informed quietly of the attack towards the end of Mass, they immediately left for the firing line. They had served their God. Now their country.

The supreme sacrifice was made by another Catholic boy with the same sweet patience he had always manifested in life. His name is George Gannam; he was not only a fine Catholic but a loyal member of the Holy Name Society as well.

Badly wounded by shrapnel, George was brought to the Army Hospital early Sunday morning, December 7th. Passing quickly up and down the Hospital wards, Father Connelly gave the last sacraments to the more seriously wounded.

George at last saw him and smiled. "Father, hear my confession. I received Holy Communion this morning at Mass. But I want to go to Confession and Communion again for the last time. I haven't long to live."

Although pale, his face hadn't a scratch. He looked well and uninjured. A blanket covered him from the waist down.

"Just a few minutes and I'll be back," replied the chaplain.

"There are other boys worse than you, George. You've been a fine Catholic. I'll be back as soon as I can."

"Okay, Father! Just as long as I know you are around."

A few minutes later, Father Connelly passed his way again. Gannam smiled and called him.

"There are a few more to anoint, George. Then I'll be back to you." Another smile—sweetly and resignedly.

Finally about 15 minutes later, he did come back. "A little lull, George. Now I'll take care of you." He heard his confession, gave him Extreme Unction and Holy Viaticum.

"How are you feeling now, George?"

"Not bad, Father," as he smiled.

Father Connelly then lifted the blanket and saw that the lower part of his body had been almost entirely shot away.

The heroic lad was much worse than most of the others, yet he didn't complain. The chaplain went with him to the operating room. George's only worry now was about his mother back on the mainland. He was anxious to see that she got his money. "Write my mother, Father. Send her this watch and wallet and give her my love." He died soon afterwards.

Your boy died a long way from home, Mother. But he died the death of a double hero—a hero of God and a hero of his country. This will be your greatest consolation in the long days to come without him.

God is so faithful to His servants that He will never permit to be deceived by the devil one who desires to please Him, and to devote his life to His honor and glory.

Dear Mrs Gannam,

Inclosed are several copies of an old snap-shot of your son, Staff Sergeant George K. Gannam. The pictures were taken 21 June 1941, when the Squadron was holding a Luau near an Army Air Base. The pictures were made from a negative that belongs to one of his friends, Staff Sergeant Michael Twardowsky and were printed by another of his friends, Staff Sergeant Francis P. Fulton. The soldier in the picture with George is Sergeant Rudolph R. Patrovich, whose home is at 960 E - 170th Street, New York City.

Since you may not have a copy, it is believed that these will be of interest to you and your family.

December 31, 1941

My dear Mrs Gannam:

At such a sad time, it is not possible to find words of comfort, but I think it does help to know someone is thinking of us and longing to comfort us.

My husband, Colonel Wilson, is in command of Schofield Barracks where all our Army boys were laid to rest after the attack on December 7th. I have tried to think of some way we could express our sympathy.

On Christmas Eve which is also my Birthday, Colonel Wilson ordered Antheriums for my gift. These we took out to the cemetery.

Today, with Chaplain Harkey, we also put many vases of the same beautiful Hawaiian flowers where our heroes rest.

On New Years Day, Chaplain Harkey with his Chaplains of all faiths will hold services of prayer there, and we shall bow our heads with a prayer that comfort may come to you.

With our deepest sympathy, I am

Yours sincerely,

It was so good of you to respond so promptly to my request for the photographs. They arrived safely this morning and we shall be very happy and proud to include them in our next issue of the Federation Herald which will go to print the first of the week.

I would like to make another request. I believe that a letter from you stating that you are proud your son gave his life in defense of his country and the freedom and liberty which you have been privileged to enjoy in this new homeland of yours, would be most welcome

A letter like the the one I suggest would find its way to the American people when we publish it and will do our people a great deal of good in this country.

In addition I would like the names of the family so that I can put them under the picture. Give them to me from left to right as they appear in the picture.

Please forgive us for not having written sooner. We are all well.

We have a new addition to the family. a six weeks old puppy. She is part spitz and part terrier, all white, and her name is snowball. We brought her home last night and we've had a great time with her today.

Now for the big news. We expect a new arrival the first of May and hope it will be a girl this time but of course

How is everyone down there?
all are well I hope. George writes to us regularly and Hazel does too.

We just heard the news of

we'll all come through safely.

How are you making out with the house. I hope it is finished

As far the water shortage it is

Charlie has had a slight cold this past week but he seems much better today. He is being was 11 months old so we think he'll be walking soon.

NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA

December 23, 1941

Dear Mrs. Gannam:

When we received a letter from Nazer that George was killed in action, you know well how I and my children felt about your misfortune. God only knows how my heart goes out to you in your hours of bereavement and if there is anything in the world that I can do do not hesitate to call upon me.

I have Kelly in the Air Corps in the Army now and I think that they will call George too, but I hope God takes care of them and also the ones you have left. May God have mercy on us and our children in this awful mess.

God has his will and there is nothing we can do about it, but please don't take it so hard because you have others left, I know how you feel about the one over there, but you must pull yourself together and try to feel, for the sake of your other children, that you will pull yourself together because I know they are worried sick and will eventually make yourself ill.

If possible, why don't you try to come down here and spend a week with me, I am sure it will take some of the burden off. For the past four months I have been ill, sometimes in the bed for at least three or four days with my legs, the same thing that was the matter with me when I went to Georgia this Summer.

Write me soon and let me know how you are and also the children and husband.

Sincerely yours,

Mrs M. Hasney

P. S. Mike, I wanted to write this letter for mama by hand but I have been working at the New Orleans Army Air Base from 8 O'Clock in the Morning to almost 11 O'Clock at night since the war began and that is the reason I wrote it on the typewriter, so please excuse. I am rushing this on the typewriter now. Try to console you mother as much as possible for I know how she feels.

My dear good Friends:

I said Mass for George this morning, at the request of the Kellys, whose card is inclosed. I am up in the mountains, and it was a great shock to me when I read of the death of one of my best altar boys. I remember talking with Mr. Gannam and Nazer last summer, and we were so proud of George and the record he had made. Bishop O'Hara tells me that he had a letter from George not long ago, and he was as good a Catholic boy as he had always been at home. Thank God for that. I have been more grief-stricken over this than over any thing that has happened in a long time. And I pray that Almighty God will give you strength to bear the heavy sorrow. It must have been a great comfort to you to have such a fine tribute paid to him. And I shall not forget him in my own prayers. God bless you all.

Devotedly yours,

Joseph D. Mitchell

A letter in care of Bishop O'Hara will be sent to me if you ever have time to write.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Gannam,

I was grievously shocked to read of Georges' death in this mornings news. So little can be done or said to express my heart felt sympathy for your and yours in this bereavement.

I was indeed fortunate in having George as a student while serving as athletic coach at Benedictine. George was a concientious, clean manly youngster and a chap that brought credit to himself and his parents for his gentlemanly manner and bearing.

Please believe me when I say that he was one of the finest boys it has ever been my pleasure to know.

I do hope you will find some small comfort in the knowledge that George lived a Christian life and brought joy to all who had the pleasure of knowing him.

Dear Aunt & Uncle

Well I was very sorry to hear the sad news but God wants him sooner than he wants us. The only thing I could tell you although it hurts that we are Americans and there are going to be a lot more of sacrifices that we have to face, were in the war now and well never quit till we crush the Axis powers till the end we won't quit till we get em all. Well all we could say is that he died a hero.

Please don't have any grudges

that is going because I'm going back

I know my position but it's

Dear Mr and Mrs Gannam and Family:-

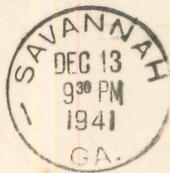

When our son Homer Newsome was in jr High school he knew your son George & we all liked him very much. The Ulmans lived at 51st & Hopkins we would visit them & Homer knowing your 2 elder sons would go there play ball with them.

Homer gets married Dec 14-41 this Sunday 10 am. We know not the outcome of his marriage even in his trip by auto on highway whether he'll reach there safe or not as all danger is not in battle these days.

But I know he will feel a deep hurt within his heart when he hears of poor George's fate.

Homer finished school only June 1941. So now he's working for a C & R R.R in Wilmington N.C in Signal Dept as his Dad does. We accept our deepest sympathy & may God Comfort you all, Mrs J. N. Newsome. I once lived at 407. W 44th & west 40

Will you accept my heartfelt sympathy in this deep sorrow you are experiencing now. That of sacrificing your precious son in this horrible war. I sent up a prayer in your behalf when I read ~~of~~ the paper this morning. I shall add you to my prayer list; Remembering you daily. Praying you are a Christian and will be a witness for Him, as a saviour of all who will accept His price He has already paid for our salvation. Not what we do, but what we do with Jesus, gives us salvation. Let us seek ~~at~~ there for Him.

May God's Holy Spirit be recognized as your ever near friend, who will guide you, if you will let Him. Learn to know Him.

Dear Aunt & Uncle:

Received your telegram Thurs. noon and Sadie and I have been so upset & shaky since we received that awful news that I just couldn't write to you any more. Forgive us & it is with deepest sympathy & a bleeding heart that I write to you. The news was also printed in our local papers & many of our friends came & offered their sympathy. Even tho I do not know your beloved son George I have taken him into my heart ever since I saw his picture and his death has hurt Sadie & I very deeply. Beloved aunt & uncle I wish I were near to you cause this is the time when we need each other most but being so far apart makes it so hard. If the body had been sent home I would have gone down & attended the funeral.

Brother David + family + sister
Margaret + family also extend to you their deepest sympathy. From the bottom of my heart I pray that God give you the strength to carry this great sorrow and there is nothing left for us to do but pray for our loved ones and when we stop to think there are many others who are feeling the same grief as we are. May God bless you and the family and my best regards to your daughter Mary + family.

Dear Friends,

It was indeed a shock to me when I learned of George's death. I was never hurt by anything so much as I was when I received this sad news. I hardly have to tell you how much of a friend he was to me, for you know how close we were. Then came the time when he sailed for Hawaii, but this never stopped our contact. His letters were never late & always he would ask if I had heard from the "folks". This meaning of course you two - of whom he was never forgetful -

It would be useless to say that George was a good boy, for you know
it as well as the rest of us. He was my best friend, and I am indeed proud that I can say this. I know both of you are proud to say that he was your son.

I wish I had been able to come home at
this time, but dire circumstances wouldn't allow me - never has my heart
or thoughts turned from your sorrow.

Mother has sent me
all the clippings of his pictures - these I intend keeping forever -

I hope all of you are well - Please let me hear from you as soon as you can - Remember you still have hope & joy.

Let all look to God
in this world of war.
For he knows best.

Sincerely yours,
W. A. Stone, Jr.

Assist At Rally In Auditorium

Miss Veronica Lake, blonde bombshell of Hollywood, was escorted by the Cadet Officers of Benedictine Military School and Officers of the High School regiment at a huge War Bond rally in the Municipal Auditorium. The Cadets, in full dress with dashing maroon sashes, cut a splendid figure as they held their gleaming sabers in a high arc for the beautiful actress to pass beneath.

After the passage of the blonde star the officers faced to the stage, presented sabers with a flourish and marched off to the side galleries from which places they viewed the proceedings on the bunting-bedecked stage. Mayor Gamble welcomed Miss Lake with a few chosen words, stating that the inhabitants of Savannah were proud to have her in their midst. After this opening address Mr. William Kehoe, an alumnus of Benedictine,

U. S. S. SYMBOL TO BE COMMISSIONED

EXERCISES THURSDAY WILL BE FIRST OF ITS KIND IN GEORGIA

The U. S. S. Symbol, constructed at the shipyards of the Savannah Machine and Foundry Company, will be commissioned Thursday morning of next week at 11:45 o'clock. The occasion will be an auspicious one, marking the first commissioning of a United States vessel in Georgia waters. Many Savannahians witnessed the christening of the beautiful little vessel last July, and will hail with pride the final chapter in the history of the preparation of Savannah's first ship for the World War.

In the absence of Rear Admiral William A. Glassford, commandant of the Sixth Naval District, Charleston, Capt. H. R. Keller, port director of naval transportation service, will receive the ship from officials of the company and turn it over to Commander Robert C. Brown who will be the officer in charge of the new vessel. The Most Reverend Gerald P. O'Hara, Catholic bishop of the Savannah-Atlanta Diocese, will deliver the invocation on this occasion. A limited number of guests will be on board the U. S. S. Symbol, designated as A. M. 123, when it is commissioned, space demanding that those witnessing the ceremony from on board be restricted almost entirely to naval personnel and officials of the company building the vessel. Invitations will be extended to a few civilians to witness the commissioning ceremonies from the dock.

The keel of the U. S. Symbol was laid last November and it was launched at impressive ceremonies July 2, being the first launched at the local plant. The sister ships, Threat and Tide, have also been launched.

Commander Brown is a native of Thomasville. He has Savannah connections which make his assignment to a Savannah-built ship of special significance. He is a brother of Mrs. J. D. McCartney and his wife is the former Miss Frances West, daughter of the late T. Newell West and Mrs. West. He was appointed to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis from the Seventh District of Georgia. His most recent assignment was at Puerto Rico.

Hero's Picture Will Hang in City Hall

The original of the above picture of Staff Sergt. George K. Gannam, first Savannahian to give his life in the present war and who was killed in action at Pearl Harbor December 7, 1941, will be unveiled at exercises at the City Hall Monday afternoon, during which tribute will be paid all Savannahians killed during the war as well as all now serving in the armed forces. Grouped around the portrait are various scenes from the life of Sergt. Gannam, including his activities at Benedictine Military School, where he was a student.

HONOR MEMORY OF SAVANNAHIAN KILLED AT PEARL HARBOR

On Monday, the first anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, which will be observed in various ways throughout the country, Savannah will have a memorial celebration unique in its character.

At 1 o'clock in the afternoon Savannahians will gather in the reception room of Mayor Gamble's office in the City Hall, to witness the unveiling of a portrait of Staff Sergt. George K. Gannam, the first Savannah boy to give up his life in the cause of liberty in the second great World War. At the time of his death he was staff sergeant in the regular army.

When the news came to Savannah on Sunday afternoon, December 7, 1941, of the treacherous attack on Pearl Harbor by the Japanese no one at first believed it. The news was so incredible that everyone for a time questioned its accuracy. It was not until some days later that news came that a Savannah boy had lost his life at that time.

George Gannam had been a student and a graduate of Benedictine Military School, held in high esteem by the faculty and all of the cadet corps. Memorial services were held at the Sacred Heart Church, attended by the Mayor and Aldermen and a large number of representative citizens.

Since then thousands of Savannah boys have entered the several armed services of the country and a number have been reported among those killed in action.

The memorial services at the Mayor's office on Monday, while paying a tribute to the first Savannah boy to fall, will also take on the character of a general tribute to all Savannah boys who have been reported as dying in action, and likewise all who are now engaged in the defense of human liberties throughout the world.

The portrait of George Gannam shows him in his uniform as staff sergeant of the Benedictine Military School and is surrounded by scenes in the military life of the Benedictine Cadets. It also shows Sergeant Gannam in the uniform in which he served his country, and makes an exceedingly attractive and illuminating portraiture of phases of military life at the school as known to Savannahians in general.

It bears the inscription "For God and Country and Benedictine Military School. Savannah's first hero, World War No. 2, Staff Sergt. George K. Gannam, killed in action, Pearl Harbor, December 7, 1941." The surrounding illustrations were snapshots taken at various times.

The picture, which will be hung beneath the clock in the Mayor's reception room, will be presented by Rev. Gregory Eichenlaub, O. S. B., principal of the Benedictine Military School, in behalf of the school. Mayor Gamble will receive it in behalf of the city, following which there will be a eulogy by Spence M. Grayson, city attorney, of the Savannahians who have fallen in action, and a tribute by him to those who are in the several branches of the country's armed service.

The Rev. John S. Wilder, D. D., has been invited to close the services with benediction. Dr. Wilder is a veteran of World War No. 1 and recently served with the 118th Field Artillery at Camp Jackson, S. C., for two years.

A special invitation has been extended to the parents of George Gannam. The public in general is also invited to the ceremonies.

On each side of the picture will be two cadet officers from the Benedictine Military School, in full dress uniform, standing at attention during the services, unveiling the picture at the proper time. The cadet officers participating in the ceremonies will be Lieut. Col. William P. Conners, Maj. J. J. Doolan, Jr., Capt. James P. Grogan and Capt. Kirk Sutlive. A bugler from the school will sound taps, giving an added military significance to the occasion.

The memorial services, which will also pay tribute to all Savannah men who have given their lives and those countless numbers who have joined the armed forces of Allied nations throughout the world, will be held at 1 o'clock.

Photograph Montage²⁷ Placed at Benedictine

A photograph montage, featuring a large picture of Sergt. George Gannam, a Benedictine graduate who died at Pearl Harbor, surrounded by smaller photographs of dedication ceremonies, has been placed on the wall of the entrance hall at Benedictine Military School, the Rev. Gregory Eichenlaub, O. S. B., principal, said last night.

Next to the montage is a roll of honor to include the names of all Benedictine students who give their lives in this war, which has been placed directly across from the roll of honor of the last war.

Orders were issued yesterday at a student assembly requiring all cadets to salute as they pass through the hall, Father Gregory said. Included in the memorial display is the American flag and the standard of the cadet corps.

"They Live Forever," a phonograph recording of a ceremony held on Washington's birthday, which paid tribute to Sergeant Gannam, was played for the cadets at their assembly yesterday.

Savannah to Remember Pearl Harbor at Memorial Service

Portrait of Staff Sergt. Gannam to Be Unveiled

BY MARGARET CURTIS

Memorial services here today—to be held a year after the incredible attack on Pearl Harbor—will honor those Savannah men who have given their lives for their country and all who are now engaged in the task of preserving human liberties. And particularly will there be a tribute to Staff Sergt. George K. Gannam, who died on December 7 at Pearl Harbor, who was the first Savannahian to lose his life in the cause for freedom in World War II.

In the reception room of Mayor Gamble's office in City Hall, citizens will gather at 1 o'clock this afternoon to see the unveiling of a portrait of Sergeant Gannam, which will be hung beneath the clock there, and to pay tribute.

Sergeant Gannam was a graduate of Benedictine Military School, and the portrait shows him in his uniform as staff sergeant of the school. He is surrounded by scenes of military life among the Benedictine Cadets, and the portrait bears the inscription, "For God and country and Benedictine Military School. Savannah's first hero, World War No. 2, Staff Sergt. George K. Gannam, killed in action, Pearl Harbor, December 7, 1941."

Savannah has become a very different place in this one war-filled year, since that Sunday when swift news of Japanese inhuman treachery shocked the city into immediate preparations for total war.

At once army posts in the vicinity cancelled all leaves and calls went out to men on furloughs and passes to report back to their posts immediately. With the help of civilian cars and buses, six thousand troops were moved from Savannah proper to their army bases. Police forces on the waterfront were doubled, and the F. B. I. announced itself fully mobilized in case of any local emergency. Vital railway points in and around Savannah were placed under close guard, and bridges, trestles, vital buildings were put under extra guard.

Civilians realized that this was their job, too, and in one day 400 air raid volunteers enlisted their services. The Civilian Defense Volunteer office of the Chamber of Commerce was crowded. Trained army personnel were recalled to Savannah to begin the rigid training of women to work at the Filter Center. Requirements for navy enlistment were slightly lowered and young men threw over school and civic responsibilities to cast their lot in the war against the

Japs. News was received of the death of Sergt. George K. Gannam, killed in action at Pearl Harbor. This was Savannah's first casualty.

All of the defense mechanism of the city was organized in a few days. A committee to start blackout functions was announced. The Inshore Patrol of the Georgia State Defense Corps was formed, small private boats to patrol the waters along the coast.

On December 16 it was announced that the old Terry Shipbuilding plant at Port Wentworth would be operated by the MacEvoy Shipbuilding Company, under contract with the United States Maritime Commission. That day, also, warning was sent out against saboteurs and that night Savannah had its first blackout, pronounced very successful. The Savannah-Chatham County Defense Council, with Robert W. Groves as chairman and Col. E. George Butler as co-ordinator, took on more and more responsibilities.

The Savannah Auxiliary Police organized, to go on duty at their posts in four districts of the city at the first sound of an alarm. Intensive recruiting campaigns began as the whole world watched MacArthur in the Philippines. As soldiers and sailors increased by the hundreds, civilian groups planned service centers and recreational facilities to care for them.

In December, a great patriotic mass meeting of all those interested in defense was held at the Municipal Auditorium. Everybody was interested in defense and there were a thousand people who could not even get into the meeting. Everyone wanted to know what there was to be done, and how they could help to get it done.

Women's place was not in the home any more. The women's division of the Chatham County Defense Council was organized, there were endless Red Cross duties to be fulfilled both day and night; the vocational schools announced a seven-day week of defense classes.

Meanwhile the quiet orderly civilian life changed. Now there were milk deliveries only in the daytime, stores could deliver only once a day, later not at all. Everything possible was done to conserve light, fuel, time. The Victory Book started and the wartime Community Chest quota was $141,000.

Great shipbuilding industry came to Savannah. The Savannah Machine and Foundry Company was expanded and the Maritime Commission announced the award of a contract to Southeastern Shipbuilding Corporation for the construction of thirty-six emergency cargo vessels. Word came of the sinking of the steamship City of Atlanta with only three of the officers and crew saved. They were mostly Savannahians on the ship, and recruiting of Navy and Marine Corps received new impetus.

The Red Cross began new courses of first aid for instructors, and courses in first aid and home nursing sprang up all over town. Women began to take war jobs, in the shipbuilding plants, in quartermaster clerical jobs at Fort Screven, in offices, banks and factories. An hour was forever lost when the nation went on War Saving time. The chairman of the executive committee of the volunteer office of Civil Defense announced that 10,368 men and women had registered for voluntary defense service.

The Savannah emergency plasma blood bank, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, began functioning. All aliens were requested to register and in February sixty-three aliens received their citizenship papers. The third "R" day came along and all men from 20 to 40 years of age registered for Selective Service. The Community Chest and the Red Cross campaigns went over the top. "Salvage for Victory" conferences started, and provision for saving all waste paper, metals, rags, was made. On General MacArthur Day there was a whirlwind campaign of collecting, selling and moving scrap—"Scrap to Slap the Jap Off the Map."

Nearly three thousands people enrolled in the Civilian Defense School. A large number of Red Cross Nurse's aides began their training. The Canteen Corps, soon fully equipped, began their work at Union Station.

Col. Eddie Rickenbacker and Col. Frank O'D. Hunter were in Savannah for a few days and advised boys who were eligible to begin aviation training. The Board of Education authorized the signing of a contract whereby a thousand men of the United States would be taught in the Savannah Vocational School, an eight weeks' term. Armstrong Junior College was accepted by the Navy Department to participate in the V-1 plan, in which freshmen and sophomores could enlist in the Navy in Class V-1 as apprentice seamen in the Naval Reserve. An emergency medical center for Savannah was announced by the chairman of the local emergency medical services.

Before even summer came the city was designated as one of the best organized and prepared cities in the South. The blast of the new siren could be heard for ten miles. Zone wardens were appointed in charge of 29 zones. All neon signs were out at night, baseball had to be played in the daytime, and Bay street was declared a restricted zone. Gas rationing and sugar rationing started, with more to come.

By "Maritime Day," keels on four ships had been laid, and in July the S. S. Symbol, Savannah's first minesweeper, was launched at the Savannah Machine and Foundry Company. The S. S. Threat soon followed. By this time there was V-mail, "Praise the Lord, and Pass the Ammunition," WAAC's and WAVES, and the promise of Veronica Lake to help sell bonds in September.

The Savannah Airport was increased to a class 6 airway with a 7,000-foot runway. In October the "Third Front" was launched in the city and tremendous amounts of scrap were collected by men, women and children, in attics, cellars, garages.

The famous Savannah Platoon of Marine Corps was sworn into service on the Marine Corp birthday, with 75 boys from Savannah and the nearby area enlisting at an impressive ceremony in Wright Square. The Navy Day banquet was attended by a crowd of 600 people and $109,000 worth of bonds were sold.

On November 20 the S. S. James Oglethorpe, Georgia's first Liberty ship was launched at the Southeastern Shipyard, christened by Mrs. Walter George, with Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery, vice chairman of the U. S. Maritime Commission among those officiating. A 10,500 ton vessel, the James Oglethorpe is the largest ship which has been launched south of Wilmington, Del. Newsreels of this event have been shown throughout the nation.

In one lone year, Savannah has done these things, and with the knowledge now of what there is to be done before the final victory, this city is going forward with new energy to accomplish them.

CEREMONY HONORS SERGEANT GANNAM

MOVING TRIBUTE PAID SOLDIER WHO DIED AT PEARL HARBOR

Savannah bowed its head today to its World War II dead, just one year after the city's first citizen lost his life at Pearl Harbor.

In solemn and touching ceremonies held at the City Hall early this afternoon, a portrait of this hero, Staff Sergt. George K. Gannam, was unveiled and presented to the city of Savannah by the Rev. Father Gregory Eichenlaub, O. S. B., principal of Benedictine Military School.

The family of George Gannam, his friends, and various public officials gathered in the Mayor's reception room where the ceremony was opened by Robert F. Downing, city marshal. An arm bouquet of red roses, held by red, white, and blue tulle, was presented to Sergeant Gannam's mother by the city.

"George Gannam was a hero not because he did great things in the eyes of the world, but because he did the ordinary things of life extraordinarily well," Father Gregory said, in making the presentation.

"He was singled out by one of the Honolulu papers as a model of patience and courage in the face of death, but those attitudes were not developed at the moment. He laid the foundations for them by purposeful living for many years."

Father Gregory, after describing the character, personality, and home-life of George Gannam, ended by saying, "May his life and death inspire other youths to live as he did—'For God and Country.'"

Two of the four Benedictine cadet officers standing before the portrait unveiled it as taps were sounded from the floor above by Cadet Sergt. J. Goodwin. The cadet officers were Cadet Lieut. Col. William P. Conners, Cadet Maj. John J. Doolan, Cadet Capt. James P. Grogan, and Cadet Capt. Kirk Sutlive.

The portrait, which is surrounded by a photomontage of events from Sergeant Gannam's life, was accepted by Mayor Gamble, who said in part:

"This war will weld the American people into one people as no other agency could possibly have done. With millions of the staunchest youth of the land fighting on widely separated fields, bravely facing death together, establishing ties of comradeship that will never be broken, and creating a spirit of genuine tolerance for varying beliefs and opinions, we can rest assured that the American people, when this war is over, will have in those who have served under the Stars and Stripes a mighty force for the preservation and promotion of human liberties, for the perpetuation of all American freedoms, that can never be overcome.

"No matter from what soil their fathers or forefathers may have come, no matter in what churches they may worship God, or what creeds they may profess, they will be found Americans to the core. That is one imperishable fruit that our country will derive from this war.

"We are all Americans today, and we will continue Americans, a more than ever united people, more than ever capable of facing any enemies which may arise threatening those liberties which we all cherish.

"I thank Father Gregory for the inspiration that led him to present this memorial to the city of Savannah. I know he visioned how it would serve in coming days and years to keep afresh in our minds, and in the thoughts of thousands of visitors to the City Hall, the courage of America, and the sacrifices it made in order that this 'government of, by and for the people' should not perish from the earth."

The eulogy was delivered by Frank M. Grayson, city attorney, who called attention to the significance of the day, calling it one for reconsecration to the task of carrying out a just vengeance for the losses and sacrifices of America's men who lost their lives because of Japanese treachery. Turning to the young men present, Mr. Grayson said: "You fine young men, in all your bloom and strength of young manhood, the schoolboys of today and the soldiers of tomorrow, let your minds be consecrated to the idea and the determination that, when this conflict is ended, that you, as the young manpower and the leaders of this great nation, shall insist that the sacrifices which have been made by our fighting men in the loss of lives, in wounds, in suffering and privation, in separation from their loved ones, their families and friends, shall not have been made in vain and that, in this one great nation, there shall continue in times of peace, a government of the people, in the truest Democratic sense and meaning of the word, where preference shall be given those who sacrificed most and where the freedom and liberties, as guaranteed by our Constitution and the Bill of Rights, shall be kept inviolate and every man and woman shall possess the right of freedom of thought and action and religion and the inalienable right to exercise their own initiative in the conduct of their lives and happiness unregimented and untrammelled."

J. Thomas Askew, president of Armstrong Junior College, and John L. Sutlive, president of the Board of Education, spoke briefly in tribute to Sergt. Gannam. The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. John S. Wilder, D. D., pastor of the Calvary Baptist Temple.

Savannah Youth Lost His Life at Pearl Harbor

Staff Sergt. George K. Gannam, Savannah's first to die in this fight that freedom may live, was honored yesterday when his portrait was unveiled at the City Hall at ceremonies commemorating all of the city's fallen dead.

The Rev. Father Gregory Eichenlaub, O. S. B., principal of Benedictine Military School, presented the picture to the city.

"George Gannam was a hero not because he did great things in the eyes of the world, but because he did the ordinary things of life extraordinarily well," Father Gregory said, in making the presentation.

Following Sergeant Gannam's death at Pearl Harbor, he was singled out by one of the Honolulu papers as a model of patience and courage in the face of danger, Father Gregory went on to say. "These attitudes were not developed at the moment," Father Gregory said. "He laid the foundations for them by purposeful living for many years.

"It is of deep significance to recall that George Gannam represented the first generation of his family born on American soil," Mayor Gamble said in accepting the portrait. "He typifies tens of thousands of American boys, now in uniform, whose parents came to our shores to find liberty."

Anniversary of Pearl Harbor Observed By Launching Big Ship

S. S. George Handley Slides Into River at Southeastern Yards; Second Liberty Ship Built In Savannah

A year almost to the hour after the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor, Savannah struck its most significant note in the observance of the anniversary yesterday morning with the launching of another cargo vessel, the S. S. George Handley.

The Liberty ship, christened by Mrs. Robert W. Groves, wife of the president of the Savannah Port Authority, eased into the Savannah river from the ways of Southeastern Shipbuilding Corporation, flags and bunting waving wildly in a northeaster which was springing up at the moment.

While the fanfare which marked the launching of the first vessel at the shipyard on November 20 was missing, the spirit of the occasion was still there as the S. S. George Handley moved downward from the way next to the one from whence the S. S. James Oglethorpe had preceded it by seventeen days.

Although no public announcement had been made prior to the launching, thousands of members of the families of the shipyard workers were allowed to attend the launching.

Henry M. Dunn, attorney for the corporation, introduced Mr. Groves, who in a brief address congratulated the company and the workmen on the contribution they have made and are continuing to make in the cause of victory over the Axis.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Samuel L. Varnedoe, assistant to the co-ordinator of the Savannah-Chatham County Defense Council.

The fitting music of such popular songs as "Remember Pearl Harbor" and "When the Lights Come on Again All Over the World" lent festivity to the occasion when some difficulty was incurred in sending the vessel down the ways.

The new cargo ship was named for a former Savannahian and early governor. George Handley was born in England in 1752, and arrived in Savannah in 1775. He became a lieutenant colonel in the Continental Army and was later captured and sent to Charleston as a prisoner of war. After the war he settled in Augusta, where he became Richmond county sheriff, state representative, inspector general of Georgia, and governor in 1788. The following year, he was appointed collector of the port at Brun-worship God, they will be found Americans to the core," he said.

"In accepting it (the portrait) for the city, I can assure all that it will be cherished as a precious memorial, dedicated to all American boys who fell in line of duty in this war.

"As people enter this room and their attention is drawn to the portrait of Sergeant Gannam, their thoughts will revert to others who, like him, gave up their lives that freedom might live," said the Mayor.

Spence M. Grayson, city attorney, who delivered the eulogy, called attention to the significance of consecrating oneself to the task of carrying out a just vengeance for the losses and sacrifices of men who lost their lives because of Japanese treachery.

Robert F. Downing, city marshal, opened the ceremony, and presented an arm bouquet of red roses to Sergeant Gannam's mother.

Two of the four Benedictine cadet officers standing before the portrait unveiled the picture, a portrait, surrounded by a photomontage of events from Sergeant Gannam's life. Taps were sounded by Cadet Sergt. J. Goodwin, Jr. Cadets standing at attention were Lieut. Col. William P. Connors, Maj. John J. Doolan, Capt. James P. Grogan and Capt. Kirk Sutlive, Jr.

Attending the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Karem Gannam, parents of Sergeant Gannam, other members of his family, a number of friends and city officials.

J. Thomas Askew, president of Armstrong Junior College, and John L. Sutlive, president of the Board of Education, spoke briefly in tribute, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. John S. Wilder, D. D., pastor of Calvary Baptist Temple.

Dear Mr. + Mrs. Gannan —

Not one of us would remind you needlessly
of the sorrow you suffered a year ago Today — but I thought there might be some comfort in knowing your friends remember and share with you — and wish for you the peace
that will come with time
and faith in the dear
God's loving mercy.

Please remember me
to Polly, Anthony, and Mike.

I am planning to
come home for a few days
at Christmas — and hope
I shall see you both then.

December 1, 1942.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Ganem,

December 7, 1941, will long be remembered by all the world as the day of the Japanese attack on American possessions. We, however, remember it for that reason and for a greater one. It is the day on which we gave one dear to us for the salvation of what is good in our American way of life and for what we hope will be a just Christian peace in the near future. George is a hero, and he is most worthy of being remembered and honored as such. I want you to know that I am not unmindful of this and that, on December 7,
I shall unite my prayers with

Mr. & Mrs. Karen Gannon

Savannah

GOD BLESS
the master of this house,
 The mistress also,
And all the little children
That round the table go:
And all your kin and kinsfolk
That dwell both far and near;
I wish you a Merry Christmas,
And a Happy New Year.

1942 Proves Banner Year For Production of First Line News

Stories of the Transformation of the City and Section From Peace to Wartime Activity Hold Spotlight

BY BILL ELLISON

Presses of the Morning News roared out many stories in 1942 that held the rapt attention of Savannahians and readers in this section. Thousands of printed words told of the transformation of Chatham county from peaceful pursuits to an integral unit of an American war machine galvanized into high gear to annihilate an Axis foe.

Lathes that had turned out appurtenances for commercial consumption, changed over to produce implements of warfare. Shipyards that had long lain dormant since another conflict, suddenly came to be full fledged productivity giants. Skeleton crews of workmen were mushroomed into armies manipulating the saw, the airhammer and welder's torch. Soon the bryo vessels became real, live, pulsating monsters that have been sliding regularly into the Savannah river and thence toward their grim missions.

Sunday afternoon sight-seers, used to lining river front railings and waving a farewell to steamers sliding seaward, laden with freight and passengers, see them no more. One, at least, they'll never see again. It rests in Davey Jones' Locker—target of a torpedo. The Savannah river front is a restricted area because of a wartime emergency decree devised as a precautionary measure against possible sabotage. You have to carry a permit that will pass stern scrutiny to walk the wharves.

A paper mill that used to rank important in the daily life of this city, with national recognition also, grew up to be a boy big enough to use a razor on his jaw. Now it's one of the biggest in the world.

Fleets normally intended for fishing and enticing the succulent shrimp from the deep, now pursue a more serious existence. They roam the inlets for any strange activities while their more sturdy brothers patrol the coast line to spot any lurking submarine.

Where the man in the street used to see an occasional plane pass overhead, he now seldom casts his eyes skyward as an armada of deadly bombers zoom past in perfect formation.

Realtors used to go on their toes to keep property filled with tenants after the "fruit basket turnover" on the occasion of annual moving day in October. Today the conjection and overcrowded conditions have become a veritable nightmare as fully 30,000 new faces have poured into Savannah because of the lure of defense work. The "fruit basket" didn't overturn last October. Also, it didn't even tilt.

Savannah-Chatham county defense has reached a point of perfection where it ranks with anything offered anywhere in the United States. Blackouts have been pronounced absolute successes.

Thousands of men from every corner of this country have arrived and are wearing the uniforms of the army, navy and marines. Service halls have sprung up all over the city to create a homelike atmosphere for wholesome recreation and entertainment. Rationing of all kind has gone into effect. Thousands of dollars have been exchanged for war saving stamps and bonds.

Men in all walks of life have left their jobs and professions to answer the call to the colors. Women and girls, their hands unused to toil, have donned overalls and buckled down to manual labor. Churches, businesses and industries are attuned to the emergency. Savannah is ready for any eventuality.

A chronological account of all these things, compiled from the 1942 files of the Morning News, follows:

navy that question recently and he answered:

"Sure the freshmen need the athletic training that we believe helpful in conditioning fighting men and we'd like to see them get it. But some conservative professors don't want to yield an inch even in war-time emergencies. They think moves to play freshmen are a deliberate attempt to lessen academic standards. Nothing could be farther from the truth, but try to convince them and get them to go along with you."

But the army and navy are expected to take over 300 colleges, with Big Ten units among them, to provide special academic training for selectees from 17 to 22 years of age and Uncle Sam then will set his own eligibility requirements and a year's residence won't be among them.

1942 Proves Banner Year For Production of First Line News

Stories of the Transformation of the City and Section From Peace to Wartime Activity Hold Spotlight

BY BILL ELLISON

Pages of the Morning News roared with many stories in 1942 that held rapt attention of Savannahians readers in this section. Thousands of printed words told of the transformation of Chatham county from peaceful pursuits to an integral part of an American war machine galvanized into high gear to annihilate the Axis foe.

Stories that had turned out appearances for commercial consumption, changed over to produce implements of warfare. Shipyards that had long been dormant since another conflict, only came to be full fledged production giants. Skeleton crews of men were mushroomed into armies manipulating the saw, the airmer and welder's torch. Soon cargo vessels became real, live, pulsing monsters that have been sliding regularly into the Savannah river to thence toward their grim mis-

Monday afternoon sight-seers, using river front railings and taking a farewell to steamers sliding past, laden with freight and passengers, see them no more. One, at they'll never see again. It rests away Jones' Locker—target of a do. The Savannah river front restricted area because of a war-emergency decree devised as a cautionary measure against sabotage. You have to carry a permit that will pass stern scrutiny to the wharves.

There the man in the street used to see an occasional plane pass overhead, now seldom casts his eyes skyward as an armada of deadly bombers past in perfect formation. Helicopters used to go on their toes to property filled with tenants after fruit basket turnover on the occasion of annual moving day in October. Today the conjunction and overcast conditions have become a terrible nightmare as fully 30,000 planes have poured into Savannah because of the lure of defense work. The "fruit basket" didn't overturn last October. Also, it didn't even tilt.

Savannah-Chatham county defense has reached a point of perfection where it ranks with anything offered anywhere in the United States. Blackouts have been pronounced absolute successes.

Thousands of men from every corner of this country have arrived and are wearing the uniforms of the army, navy and marines. Service halls have sprung up all over the city to create a homelike atmosphere for wholesome recreation and entertainment. Rationing of all kind has gone into effect. Thousands of dollars have been exchanged for war saving stamps and bonds.

Men in all walks of life have left their jobs and professions to answer the call to the colors. Women and girls, their hands unused to toil, have donned overalls and buckled down to manual labor. Churches, businesses and industries are attuned to the emergency. Savannah is ready for any eventuality.

A chronological account of all these things, compiled from the 1942 files of the Morning News, follows:

navy that question recently and he answered:

"Sure the freshmen need the athletic training that we believe helpful in conditioning fighting men and we'd like to see them get it. But some conservative professors don't want to yield an inch even in war-time emergencies. They think moves to play freshmen are a deliberate attempt to lessen academic standards. Nothing could be farther from the truth, but try to convince them and get them to go along with you."

But the army and navy are expected to take over 300 colleges, with Big Ten units among them, to provide special academic training for selectees from 17 to 22 years of age and Uncle Sam then will set his own eligibility requirements and a year's residence won't be among them.

Survivors of Transport That Struck Mine

A photo by News of the Day Newsreel shows barges and life-rafts milling about the debris of a South Pacific island, picking up survivors of transport, the former President Coolidge, which struck a mine and sank. About four thousand soldiers were saved, only four lost. Note the men standing in shallow water in background. Both President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Navy Knox declared they had no information to indicate the transport struck a U. S. mine. (Central Press)

الحلي والجواهر في قصور امراء الهند

اللاآلي التي تحلي عروش حكام الهند غريبة الحوادث تكاد تمثل حكايات الف ليلة وليلة

لا ادري لماذا لا يهتم ابناء الشرق الادنى بجيرانهم الهنود ولا يحاولون درس مدنياتهم القديمة والحديثة كما يدرسون المدنيات الاوروبية ومدنيات الاقوام الدرركة في مصر وفينيقيا وبابل واشور . هذا ما قاله يوما الميجر ايمري الملحق العسكري السابق في السفارة البريطانية بواشنطن وكان قد اقام في الهند نحو ١٥ سنة برتبة كابتن وهو يتقن اللغة السنكرستية الهندية وقد ترجم بعض كتبها الى اللغة الانكليزية . وقال لي ايضا انه عندما كان في خدمة حكومة السودان بعد قدومه من الهند اختلط بكثير من ابناء بلادنا القديمة من مصريين وسوريين ولبنانيين فوجد ان اكثرهم يتقنون اللغتين الانكليزية والفرنسية جيدا وبعضهم يعرف اللغات الالمانية والايطالية والروسية ولكنه لم يشاهد واحدا منهم يعرف اللغة الهندية . فاذا كان الغرض من درس لغات الاجانب الاتصال بهم ومد اسباب ووسائل التجارة معهم فالهند اولي بذلك والتجارة

تبادله الحب ايضا . فلما
عرف السلطان بذلك دبر
دسيسة قتل بها شقيقه الامير
ليخلو له الجو ويستولي على
قلب الراقصة الفاتنة - ثم
بعث يطلبها واعدا اياها
بالسعادة اذا قبلت بان تصير
احدى حظاياها . فلما عرفت
بالدسيسة ابت ان تخون عهد
القتيل ورفضت الذهاب الى
القصر . فارسل يتوسل اليها
ويقول انه وقع اسيرا في جدائل
شعرها كما يقع الطير في
الشرك . فتناولت المقص
وجزت شعرها وارسلته اليه .
ولكنه عاد يستعطفها بقوله ان
وجهها الذي يشبه القمر
باستدارته هو الذي ملك قلبه .
فاخذت الراقصة سكينا حادة
وشرطت وجهها حتى صارت
هيئته كهيئة ترعب الناظر اليه
ثم ماتت حزينة قابضة بيدها
على عقد الافراح الذي عرفت
بواسطته الامير حبيبها

ومن الجواهر النفيسة التي
لعبت دورا هاما في الهند
الماسة «كوهينور» تداولتها
ايدي الامراء المحاربين حتى
استقرت اخيرا في حوزة ملك
بريطانيا وامبراطور الهند .
واول ما عرف عنها انها كانت
مطمورة في حائط قصر ملكي
في الهند فلما انهزم صاحبه
وقتل عثر عليها الامير الظافر
صدفة . ثم اضاعها ولم يعلم
كيف ضاعت الى ان لقيها
الكناسون مرة في بقايا

بواشطنون وكان قد اقام في
الهند نحو ١٥ سنة برتبة كابتن
وهو يتقن اللغة السنكرستية
الهندية وقد ترجم بعض
كتبها الى اللغة الانكليزية .
وقال لي ايضا انه عندما كان
في خدمة حكومة السودان بعد
قدومه من الهند اختلط بكثير
من ابناء بلادنا القديمة من
مصريين وسوريين ولبنانيين
فوجد ان اكثرهم يتقنون
اللغتين الانكليزية والفرنسية
جيذا وبعضهم يعرف اللغات
الالمانية والايطالية والروسية
ولكنه لم يشاهد واحدا منهم
يعرف اللغة الهندية . فاذا
كان الغرض من درس لغات
الاجانب الاتصال بهم ومد
اسباب ووسائل التجارة معهم
فالهند اولى بذلك والتجارة
معها تفيد بل هي مصدر غنى
وفير لمصر وسوريا والعراق
وكل الاقطار العربية المجاورة
هذا فضلا عما في الهند من
الثقافة الماضية والحضارة
العصرية الراقية وما يترتب عنها
من الفوائد الجلى والمنافع
الكثيرة لمن يتصل بها

اقول هذا مقدمة لما اروييه
عن الحوادث الغريبة عن الحلى
والجواهر التي يقتنيها امراء وراجوات الهند . هذه
الحوادث بل الروايات التي
تعد من الخيالات بل هي اشبه
بحكايات الف ليلة وليلة
العربية . غير ان الفرق بين
حكايات الف ليلة وليلة
وحكايات هذه الجواهر
كالفرق بين الخيال والحقيقة
لان القصص العربية مع ما فيها
من دقة التصور وجمال الاسلوب
وحسن التعبير هي كما نعلم

الصورة التذكارية للبطل الامريكى اللبناني الاصل جورج غنام

تمثل هذه الصورة مشاهد مختلفة عن نشأة اول شهيد من ابناء مدينة سفانا وربما من كل ولاية جورجيا وهو السرجنت جورج غنام الذي قضى في يوم الغدر في بيرل هاربر وقد قدم هذه الصورة الى مدينة سفانا رئيس المدرسة الكاثوليكية العسكرية التي تخرج منها البطل الشهيد فاقبلها محافظ المدينة في احتفال شائق وستبقى معلقة في دار البلدية في مكان بارز من غرفة المحافظة . وهذه الصورة منقولة بتلطف من حدة سفانا

لسواه بما يكون قد اتاه من الاعمال الماثلة التي لا يتازعه احد الحق في ادعائها لنفسه

نذكر ان احد انصار الهدى الغياري في جاكسنفيل فلوريدا الاستاذ تقولا دبس الغزيري كتب اينما حين اذيع على الراديو خبر استشهاد البطل غنام يشكو عدم نسبته الى قوميته اللبنانية فجرد بذلك اللبنانيون من حق لهم صراح

وعلى هذه الحادثة نفسها يمكننا ان نطبق حادثة البطل اللبناني من عائلة القاعي الذي كان اول من اطلق مدفعا من دبابة امريكية في معارك ليبيا . ثم حادثة البحار اللبناني من الاسرة المملووية الذي نجا من حاملة الطائرات القديمة لكسنغتن فوق الاختيار عليه مع خمسة من رفاقه لمشاهدة حدر حامله الطائرات الجديدة التي اطلق عليها اسم لكسنغتن

ان الامة بافراها . والتاريخ هو سجل اعمال الامة بافراها وبمجموعها في ما يبرر وجودها في مصاف الامم الحية ويجعلها خليفة بالذكر . والامة اللبنانية ناهضة الان الى توطيد دعائم استقلالها . وهي تذكر الامة الامريكية العظمى حامية حريات الامم الصغرى وناشرة راية الديمقراطية والعدالة بان من ابنائها عشرات الالوف مدافعين عن مبادئها . فلماذا لا يحق لها المطالبة بان يكون هؤلاء المعدودون بعشرات الالوف معروفين بنسبتهم اللبنانية الصحيحة . ولا سيما في هذه الظروف العصيبة . وفي حين نجد الحكومة الامريكية قد عينت وكيلا سياسيا لها لدى جمهورية لبنان ولدى جمهورية سوريا كل منهما بصفتها المستقلة

اننا نعز ونفاخر ببطولة اخواننا من سائر العناصر ونوليهم حقهم ولا نقصر في تأدية واجب الاطراء والشكر لهم . فليعاملنا الاخوان بالمثل حتى ينال كل ذي حق حقه . حتى اذا ثبت هذا الحق اتفقت كلمتنا وتعاوننا في كل ما يكون التعاون فيه موعديا الى تعزيز وتوحيد جهودنا لنصرة وطننا الامريكى الجديد الواحد الذي من اجله يفادي اولادنا بارواحهم للمحافظة على
